The Record of the Republican Party. The record of the republican party since the 4th of March, 1897, has been more remarkable than has been more remarkable than during any like number of years in the history of any party. When Wm. McKinley was inau-guarated he at once called a speci-al session of congress which placed the Dingley tariff bill on the stat-ute books. This bill has pre-served for American labor the greatest opportunities for steady employment because it practically employment because it practically bars from competition the product of cheap foreign labor. This law has not only enlarged our home market but paradoxical as it may seem it has enlarged our foreign market and this enlarged market has increased the demand which our home labor has supplied. This increased the demand for labor and virtually gave to every willing worker employment. The Dingley tariff law is older in point of continued service than any other like measure. It is likely to remain for at least another four years. The party settled the mon-ey question by establishing a standard which has kept all forms of our circulating medium at par. It has settled the Alaska boundary dispute. It has made the building of the Panama canal an assured fact. It has taught the illegitimate trust promoting side of Wall street that creature, however strong financially cannot control the creator. It has preserved the integrity of the Chinese Empire and secured the open door in-to which millions of our products re now entering yearly. It has established under the flag the stations of Honolulu, Guam and Manila on the great ocean highway to the Orient. It has established permanently the delivery of daily mails to rural inhabitants. Every one of these accomplishments has met with sturdy oppo-sition of the democratic party. If that party was restored to power it would not dare repeal a single act performed by the republican president during that time, and yet this party in its dotage, asks the great public to place it in pow-er because the republican party and its president are not safe.
